DETAILED ACTION

Information Disclosure Statement

1. The information disclosure statement filed 5/17/01 fails to comply with 37 CFR 1.98(a)(2), which requires a legible copy of each U.S. and foreign patent; each publication or that portion which caused it to be listed; and all other information or that portion which caused it to be listed. It has been placed in the application file, but the information referred to therein has not been considered. The copies were not provided by Applicant.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 1 and 2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Japanese Patent JP-937407 to Taga et al. (using U.S. Patent 5915801 as an English equivalent) in view of Harada et al. (JP 10-278762) (corresponding to U.S. Harada et al. 6081761 throughout the office action for column and line numbers). Taga et al. disclose a control device capable of being used for controlling an over-rolling of a vehicle having a vehicle body, wheels, a steering system, and a brake system, the device or brake controller comprising: a means for providing a first parameter quantity indicative of a variable amount of the vehicle or accelerator pedal angle signal for determining pedal position as labeled in figure 1, a means for providing a second parameter quantity of a change rate of a variable amount of a vehicle body or pedal releasing speed as disclosed in col. 7 lines 55-60, and a means for controlling the brake system such that a target deceleration occurs when the first parameter quantity exceeds a threshold value as inferred in col. 2 lines 38-42, the target deceleration being increased according to an increase of the second parameter quantity or accelerator pedal releasing speed as disclosed in col. 7 lines 55-60, but does not disclose that the device is used specifically for controlling vehicle over-rolling. Harada et al. teach in the last four lines of the abstract the use of a brake controlling device utilizing target deceleration control to prevent over-rolling of a vehicle. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have modified the target deceleration control associated with the first and second parameters of Taga et al. to have included the prevention of over-rolling of a vehicle, as taught by Harada et al., in order to provide a means of improving overall vehicle stability.

Re: claim 2. Taga et al., as modified, teaches a means for providing a first parameter quantity of a change rate of a rolling amount of a vehicle body or lateral acceleration. See Harada et al. col. 13 lines 48-51.

4. Claim 4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Japanese Patent to Taga et al. and Harada et al. as applied to claim 1, and further in view of Ikemoto et al. Ikemoto et al. teach in col. 3 line 28 the use of the rate of change of the steering angle in the control of vehicle over-roll. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have modified the second parameter quantity indicative of a change rate of the variable amount of the vehicle body of Taga et al., as modified, to have included a rate of change of the steering angle, as taught by Ikemoto et al., in order to provide an alternate parameter for triggering the necessary target deceleration control.

Allowable Subject Matter

5. Claims 3, 5, and 6 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Response to Arguments

6. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1, 2, and 4 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
